Employee Health Management

Every organisation is in business to get results that could be tied to profit, impact, awareness, or sales. However, there can be no viable results without a productive team.

Increasing employee performance and productivity through personalized health and wellness strategies is a cost-effective growth strategy. With DoctallPro Employee Health Services, organizations are empowered to reduce medical and productivity costs through IT-enabled (digital) health services for chronic care employees and others who are recovering from surgery.

The Doctall EHM services are designed to help organizations save direct medical costs due to existing acute and chronic conditions, properly handle non-optimal performance due to developing health conditions and tackle absenteeism
